Court Square Thronged with People. At an early hour yesterday morning, long before the shutters were removed and doors opened for business in the Main street stores, large crowd of men and boys was observed in Court square, anxiously waiting for someend the final exercises of the Philomathian thing or somebody to appear. The iron seats were crowded to their utmost capacity, the circle around the fountain was crowded, while male bipeds—single, in pairs and squads promenaded up and down the walks. The little squirrels peered down from the tree-tops, and looked wonderingly at the swarm of humanity collected in the square. A re-porter, who had either been up all night, or had ventured out so early in hopes of receiving the early bird's reward—an item instead of a worm, however—inquired of one of the promenaders the cause of the assembly, and was told that they were all waiting for the opening of the doors of Jules Behr & Co.'s GREAT SUCCESS OF OUR INNOVATION lothing store, No. 255 Main street, in order to avail themselves of the earliest opportuni at reduced prices, as it had become generally understood, and correctly, too, that their imcunty-Trustee Rawlings Rises to Explain the Collection of Taxes Made for the City, and to Show the Error of the Appeal Local Paragraph of Yesterday Morning.

To the Editors of the Appeal: I noticed a paragraph in your paper of this morning, well calculated to leave wrong im-pressions on the public minds. It is this: 'The city tax-collector's returns of taxes collected during the past week show collections amounting to fifty-four hundred dollars, and of this amount there was twenty-five cents in cash, the rest having been raid in alternative that could be desired for the event. The children assembled in their various schools and took part in some short exercises. They then proceeded to the different churches to which they had been assigned where here cash, the rest having been paid in city in-debtedness." By not publishing the whole report, you leave the impression—first, that twenty-five cents was all the money collected on the city taxes in a week; second, that the tax-payers of Memphis were paying their whole taxes in depreciated city scrip; and third, that I was buring the scrip (as I have heard it intimated) and paying it into the treesure as each. If such impressions can be treasury as cash. If such impressions can be fairly drawn from your article, I propose to prove them all false, from beginning to end. You will please do me the favor lo insert here my full report, which will, of itself, measurably correct such impressions: FORTY-NINTH CORPORATE YEAR (1876). MEMPHIS. TENN., May 21, 1877. Statement of city revenue collected for the third week ending May 19, 1877, by J. J. Rawlings, county trustee for Shelby county.

This simple fact shows that the city taxes are not wholly collected in depreciphis have to pay a large proportion in actual cash in relieving themselves of the exorbitant burthens; especially when I can say that I paid into the treasury, but a few days before. $4000 in cash on the Brown mandamus for 1876. As to the allusions to myself in connection with this matter, they are too "thin' to deserve notice. I never bought a dime's worth of city scrip in my life, and I defy any do it for me. The first item on the city tax books "Tax for general purposes," $1 on the $100, composes more than one-half of the whole tax. That tax is payable in ledger balances, which can be bought at seventy-five or eighty cents. Of course, nobody will pay that in cash when they can so easily save twenty or twenty-five cents. On that one

J. J. RAWLINGS. County Trustee. [In reply to the above, we can, in a good-humored way, state that no doubt Mr. Raw-lings's figures are correct as to the amount collected and paid in by him in cash and city warrants; that no impression, either fairly or unfairly, can be drawn from the article referred to; that Mr. Rawlings was buying scrip; that the tax-payers have a legal right to pay either in money or depreciated city scrip, as they see fit; that no allusion, either near or remote, could possibly, fairly or logically, be tortured out of the article as referring to Mr. Rawlings in any particular, except the error in stating that "the city tax-collector collected fifty-four hundred dollars, and of this amount as the place for holding the next general con-Carolina; H. Two Thousand Dollars Wanted for a Suppositious Dead Memphian-A Narrow Escape for the A. 0. U. W.

The Nashville American, of the twenty-third instant, contains the following strange story, which is nevertheless true: "On the seventh of last July a lodge of the Ansient Order of United Workmen was organized in the city of Memphis, with thirteen charter members, by a deputy of the supreme lodge from Indiana. On the tenth of last February the officers of the lodge reported to the supreme lodge, in due form, that a member named Samuel Sharp had died. With this came a request to forward the two thousand dollars due his heirs. The time at which this member was reported to have died was about two days prior to the organization of the grand lodge for this State. When the grand lodge was organized, Memphis lodge was no longer under the jurisdiction of the supreme the grand lodge. The grand lodge officers put themselves in correspondence with the Memphis lodge, and after learning from their recorder, who was very dilatory about answering communications, that they had made swering communications, that they had made no progress whatever, but that, instead, their membership was reported reduced from thir-teen to ten by suspensions, they became satisfied that all was not right, and a special deputy was sent to Mem-phis to inquire into the circumstances relating to the death of Sharp. While this deputy was in Memphis the draft payable to Sharp's heirs was sent to the grand recorder Sharp's heirs was sent to the grand recorder of this State, who forwarded it to the deputy instead of sending it to the recorder of the lodge. The deputy, after remaining in Memphis for about ten days, and making diligent inquiry, was unable to find the lodge or any of its members. He conferred with the board of health, and with the assistance rendered him by friends, he became satisfied that no such man as Samuel Sharp had died in Shelby county this year, and that parties were trying to swindle the supreme lodge out of two thousand dollars. This they doubtless would have done had not the officers of the grand lodge acted with such promptness in the mat-The deputy returned the draft to the grand recorder, who sent it back to the supreme lodge, and the grand master suspended Memphis lodge No. 1—so-called—from all the rights and privileges of the order."

Continuation of the Various Denominational Conventions, and the Brooklyn Sunday - School Union Anniversary.

New York, May 23.—The forty-elighth anniversary of the Brooklyn Sunday-school union was celebrated in that city to-day, and it is estimated that forty thousand children were in the procession. The weather was all that could be desired for the event. The which they had been assigned, where hymns were sung and addresses delivered, after which the parade took place. There were eight divisions, and in each division there were from six to eight schools. The procession was accompanied by bands of music.

Presbyterian General Assembly. CHICAGO, May 23.—In the Presbyterian general assembly this morning several ap-peals and overtures of synods and presbyte-ries were read and variously disposed of. The committee on church polity made a re-port on the establishment of a final court of appeals, the substance of which has already been given in these dispatches. The minority submitted a report declaring that it is inexpedient and unnecessary to send down to the presbyteries the question of establishing

BALTIMORE, May 23 .- In the Methodist Protestant convention, Pittsburg was selected The consideration of the report of the committee on boundaries was resumed, and the report was adopted. The districts of Michigan, west Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky remain unchanged; other districts in the north, south, east and west, with a few unportant changes, remain the same. The committee on missions submitted a report. It provides that the general conference, at its quadriennial session, shall elect a board of missions, consisting of nine members, including three as an executive commit tee, whose terms shall be four years, and who shall be located in Springfield, Ohio. The committee on the revision of the con-stitution and discipline of the church submitted an additional report, which was considered and adopted. The report of the committee on ministerial ducation, recommending the establishment of a theological seminary, was recommitted.

A resolution that the several annual conferences, or their presidents, be requested to take measures for the celebration in their respective districts of the completion of the first half century of the Methodist Protest-ant church, which takes place November 18th, was adopted.

A resolution to appoint a committee to prepare a statistical report to be inserted in the ournal of the proceedings of the convention was adopted

The report of the committee on revision was resumed, and the articles on the general church boards, duties of pastors, associatepastors, supernumeraries, class-leaders, was adopted after several minor amendments. The article on the general duties of trustees was adopted. A paper recommending that the president and secretary of the convention hold the same offices in the church until the next general convention, but to have no prerogative or was adopted. The report of the committee on revision was resumed, and articles on religion, public worship, course of study for the ministry and christian duties were adopted, and an mendment against the use of tobacco wa added to the latter article. At eleven o'clock to-night the convention is still in session with a view of concluding their labors and adjourning finally to-night. American Baptist Missionary Union.

PROVIDENCE, May 23.—At the session of the American Baptist missionary union the committee on a special missionary paper submitted a report recommending that the existing debt of forty-seven thousand dollars be paid, not by a general contraction and retrenchment of missions, or by withholding from Birmah a new mission in Baumor, but by a more universal and larger giving. The managers are requested to inquire whether or not some of the missions might not as well be discontinued for the sake of largely reinforcing the missions of promise. The report was adopted.

A proposition to clear the whole det a forty-seven thousand dollars was received with tremendous applause, and sums were offered by individuals or pledged by churches until thirty-six thousand dollars were raised, The First Baptist church at Cleveland, Ohio, was chosen as the place for the next an nual meeting. The reports of the committees on Asiatic and European missions, recommending no batement of the work, were adopted. The committee on enrollment reported three hundred and four life members and one undred and twenty-three delegates present. Revs. W. E. Hatcher and A. E. Dickinson, lelegates from the Southern Baptist convenion, were invited to seats on the platform. President Robinson extended true chris tian fellowship from every member of the mion. They responded briefly. A resolution was offered and referred to the board of managers providing for the appointment of a committee to confer with a

The Black Hills Hero.

In the year 1874, when all gold-seeker in a fervor of excitement about the black Hills, and thousands of ambilious young men had the gold-dust mania on the crain, and not a cent in their pockets, a very enterprising youth of eighteen summers left sweet nome in a mysterious manner to seek his fortune and shelter under the bright stars that are prepring from the blue bosom of heaven on the golden treesure known as the Black Hills region; with the glittering letters of hope unchored in his heart, and with a firm resolu tion, he worked his way to the land of his ambition. But, alas! his wild chase has eaft with him as with thousands of others. His bright vision of striking a gold mine turned out a deceitful pictore of fancy, and last Wednesday he returned in threadba clothes, his bare elbow sticking out at his sleeve, having a close resemblance to the garment of "Rip Van Winkle," after the sleep of twenty years. With his last ten-dollar note, hidden in one corner of his torn preeches pocket, this young man entered an establishment with the intention to let his last dollar slip for a suit of clothes; but how informed him that he had no suits at any such price. Disappointed, he left the store and, with a melancholy look on his handsome face, entered store No. 2, when he was again told by one of the salesmen that they had no suits at such low rates. Not wishing to enter his parental bome in such a seedy wardrobe, he walked along like festive street with bended head and in deep meditation. People The judiciary committee recommended that at him as though he were the ghost in Hama commission of seven be chosen by the as-sembly to try the case of the Harmony church trouble. At last the thought flashed through his young mind about an advertisement he mainder. Baffled in all his undertakings, the and give it a test, when, to his great joy, he found the very suit of clothes he wanted, and but says that the hard times, the famine in costing him only ten dollars. In hasty described against the work and the Eastern war have light did he shove his hand down in his seedy pants pocket and draw out the X to pay for the same, and politely did he ask permis sion to enter the dressing-room, which request was granted. The great change made by the new suit, types cannot picture, as the salesman who sold the clothes did not recog-
